

Website Launch Readiness Checklist

A practical guide for a clear, mobile-friendly business website

Use this before you rebuild a website or hire support. The goal is not to make a site do everything. It is to make it easy for the right visitor to understand your work, trust the basics, and take one clear next step.

1. Prepare the essentials

- ☑ State the value clearly. In one sentence, say who you help and what outcome or service you provide.
- ☑ Choose one primary action. Decide whether you want visitors to call, request a quote, schedule, or send an inquiry.
- ☑ Gather final materials. Bring together your approved logo, copy, photos, service details, hours, contact information, and domain access.
- ☑ Name one decision-maker. Confirm who can approve page copy and visual direction within one consolidated revision round.
- ☑ Identify complexity early. Note whether you need more than one page, booking, payments, member access, data collection, e-commerce, or integrations.

2. Test the visitor's path

- ☑ Run the first-screen test. On a phone, can a new visitor quickly tell what you do and who it is for?
- ☑ Run the contact test. Can the visitor take the next step without hunting through menus, tiny links, or long blocks of text?
- ☑ Check your credibility basics. Is your real business name, contact route, service detail, and current information easy to find?
- ☑ Keep the page scannable. Use plain headings, short sections, readable type, meaningful image descriptions, and an obvious call to action.
- ☑ Decide the right next move. Fix a few basics, improve the current site, or prepare a focused one-page launch.

Is the $997 Website Launch Sprint a fit?

It is designed for a business that has final copy and basic assets, needs one mobile-first landing page, wants an inquiry path and basic metadata, can make timely decisions, and is comfortable with one consolidated revision. Additional pages, custom functionality, content writing, third-party services, and extra revision cycles are scoped separately before work begins.

Ready to discuss a focused launch? Visit melanatedintech.com/work-with-us · Melanated In Tech